ELECT PHARES AS CHAIRMAN

WILL HEAD EXECUTIVE BOARD OF RED CROSS.

NAME MEETING NIGHT

Mrs. W. F. Phares, Murray Welling and Miss Betty Turner Other Officers Chosen.

W. F. Phares was elected chairman of the executive board of the Nodaway County Chapter, American Red Cross, at a meeting of the 1925 and 1926 boards last night in the Red Cross rooms. Mr. Phares succeeds Dr. C. V. Martin in the office.

Other officers elected were: Mrs. W. F. Phares, vice-chairman; Murray Welling, secretary and treasurer; and Miss Betty Turner, executive secretary. Chairmen appointed last night by the board were: Mrs. Fern Crull, Junior Red Cross; Mrs. J. J. Heifner, braille; Edward W. Gray, disaster relief; and Mrs. Earl Barmann, volunteer service. It was decided that the regular meeting night for the 1926 board will be the first Thursday in each month.

At the first meeting of the new board, plans for an extensive Red Cross program for the year will be discussed. Nothing of this nature was brought up at the meeting last night as it was more of an organization affair.

With the exception of Miss Turner, none of the elected officers served in similar capacities on the 1925 board. Mr. Phares was a member of the executive board in 1919.

The officers for this year were: Dr. C. V. Martin, chairman; John Mutz, vice-chairman; and W. N. Deatherage, secretary and treasurer.

Skating Is Fine on City Reservoir,

Mayor Garrett Says "Enjoy It."

Yoo too! Skinnay! Run like everything. The skating's fine!

Mayor W. O. Garrett announced today that the city of Maryville would be host at an "ice party" tonight, and every other night this week unless the ice melts or cutting of ice begins.

Basin No. 2, the lake just north of the city pumping station, will be thrown open to skaters big and little. It is the first time such action has ever been taken in recent years, and upon the success of this week's experiment depends its continuation.

Basin No. 2 is 150 yards square and contains about six or seven acres of perfectly smooth ice. Farther north is an even larger basin, but the skaters will not be allowed there, as it is dangerous because of air holes.

The ice on Basin No. 2, according to J. W. Qualls, superintendent of the city water department, has reached a depth of eight inches or more and apparently is perfectly safe. The city, however, will not be responsible for accidents. There may be danger where Basin No. 2 joins the basin on the north, but an inspection will be made and a fence erected if the ice is found to be thin.

The cutting of ice is not expected to start until the first of the week. This will put an end to the skating, but it will be fine for the next two or

Appreciative Audience at Vets Entertainment

and Number of Persons are Present—At Graham Friday.

A fair-sized and appreciative audience attended the entertainment at Gaynor last night given for the benefit of Roosevelt camp, Spanish War veterans. In addition to the orchestra numbers there were violin solos by Miss Hansen and Miss Belt and two readings by Miss Mary Elizabeth Jones.

Dr. C. P. Fryer and Miles Spargur gave short talks concerning the Spanish-American War and described conditions in the Philippines.

The proceeds of the entertainment will be applied to the fund for purchasing a stand of colors for the camp. A similar entertainment will be given at Graham Friday night.

FIGHT BREWS OVER RELIEF

COOLIDGE FARM POLICIES IN FOR CONGRESS ATTACK

WOULD AMEND TARIFF

Westerners Say Present Duty Favors
Manufacturers and Is About Equal To Price-Fixing.

Washington, Dec. 30.—A stiff fight was brewing in Congress today over farm relief legislation.

The farm conference, just closed in Des Moines, has sharpened the spears of the western agriculturists who are going to demand through legislation that the government get into business of assisting the farmers in marketing their surplus at a profit.

The administration is certain to come in for some hard rapping over the farm relief policies laid down by President Coolidge in his Chicago speech to the American Farm Bureau Federation and since reaffirmed by him. The President opposes price-fixing, directly or indirectly, but will aid in establishing a surplus corporation to help the farmer himself market his crops abroad. This best can be done by co-operative marketing organizations, the White House believes.

An attempt will be made to raise the tariff duties on farm products. Tariff revision has long been threatened by members of the farm bloc who feel that the manufacturer, through the tariff, receives what in their opinion is equal to price fixing.

CAN RELOCATE STATE ROADS

SUPREME COURT UPHOLDS HIGH-WAY COMMISSION.

OVERRULES INJUNCTION

Citizens Of St. Charles And Warren
Counties Lose Fight—Same Issues in Fulton Case.

Jefferson City, Dec. 30.—The state highway commission was upheld in its right to relocate state roads when the Supreme Court today affirmed the judgment of the Cole County circuit court, which sustained the highway department's demurrer to the injunction suit brought by citizens of St. Charles and Warren counties.

The decision affects the famous Fulton injunction suit which sought to restrain the highway commission from relocating state highway No. 2, between St. Louis and Kansas City. The new location took this main cross-state highway six miles north of the present road, which runs through Fulton.

The suit on which the decision was made today was filed February 9, 1923. The citizens of the two counties contended the law compelled the highway commission to route the principal roads through the towns specifically mentioned in Section 29 of the highway commission act.

The highway commission construed the law to mean that it could relocate the road between the principal centers of population in the interest of economy and directness of routes specifically provided for in the same section of the highway law.

The issues in this suit and the Fulton suit, which caused state-wide interest last summer, are identical. The decision was written by Justice Frank E. Atwood of Carrollton and was concurred in by Justices Blair, Ragland and White. Justices Graves and Walker dissented.

Chicken Thieves Visit Farm Near Barnard

Harve Walden Fires Two Shots at Retreating Figures and Three Sacks of Fowls Are Dropped.

About thirty-five chickens were stolen last night from Harve Walden, who lives four miles southwest of Barnard. Mr. Walden heard the commotion in his poultry yard and seized a gun with which he fired two shots. The thieves dropped three sacks of the fowls and ran. Mr. Walden was too scantily clad to continue the chase.

There were no clues as to the identity of the thieves.

Mr. Wagner has been in poor health for some time and his condition since his paralytic stroke has been critical. Friends and relatives have little hope for his recovery.

Mrs. Mary A. Phares will leave tomorrow afternoon for Los Angeles, Cal., where she will spend the winter months. She expects to be gone until April 1. Misses Jessie and Lou Mutz, who have been spending the Christmas vacation with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Mutz, will leave at the same time to resume their work in the Los Angeles schools.

ST. LOUIS MEN SENTENCED

MUST SERVE PRISON TERMS AND PAY FINES.

IN BIG LIQUOR DEAL

Prominent Citizens Convicted On Charges of Conspiracy—Kinney Gets New Hearing.

Indianapolis, Ind., Dec. 30.—Arnold J. Heilmich, former internal revenue collector at St. Louis for the eastern district of Missouri was sentenced to two years in the federal penitentiary at Leavenworth and fined $5,000 by Judge Baltzell in federal court here today, following his conviction with twenty-one others here recently on charges of conspiracy to violate the national prohibition law as the result of the theft of 30,000 gallons of liquor from the Jack Daniel distillery in St. Louis in the summer of 1923.

Others who were convicted with Heilmich and received the same punishment included Harry Levin, former St. Louis deputy constable, Morris Multin, former St. Louis whiskey dealer, Nat Goldstein, wealthy St. Louis politician and former circuit clerk of St. Louis, and Michael Whalen, Democratic city commissioner and former St. Louis alderman.

Senator Michael J. Kinney, Missouri state senator, was granted a new trial on his motion in which he declared he was convicted on insufficient evidence.

Other sentences meted out ranged from four months in the county jail to eighteen months in the federal penitentiary and $1,000 fines.

M. J. Quinlan Funeral Visitors Return Home

Few New Details Are Learned in Death of Prominent Gilman City Dentist.
Frozen While Hunting.

A number of out-of-town relatives and friends attended the funeral rites held at St. Patrick's Catholic Church yesterday morning for Dr. M. J. Quinlan of Gilman City, who was frozen to death while hunting.

The services were conducted at 9:30 a. m., by the Rev. Fr. Niemann and burial was made in St. Patrick's cemetery. The pallbearers were John Murphy, James Murphy, John Behm, Mike Sherlock, John Halsey and William Berg.

Lloyd Clayton, brother of Mrs. Quinlan, who was Miss Ada Clayton of this city, drove with Mrs. Clayton from their home in Omaha, Neb. They returned today. Mrs. Albert Berlin, a sister of Mrs. Quinlan, will return tomorrow to her home in Wakefield, Kan., and Mr. and Mrs. Orlean Kelly, the latter also a sister of Mrs. Quinlan, already have returned to their home in Pickering. John Quinlan of Seneca, Kan., a brother, returned at noon today.

Dr. and Mrs. W. L. Warren of Gilman City also attended the funeral.

Little more is known of Dr. Quinlan's death. The gun with which he started on his hunting trip Tuesday was missing, apparently having been stolen from his car. The car was ditched and Dr. Quinlan is known to have applied at one farmhouse for aid, but it was occupied by an aged couple who had no telephone. His body was found Saturday night in the yard of a vacant house farther on, more than a mile from the car.

Miss Ritze Leaves Saturday.

Miss Bertha Ritze, who has been spending the holidays with her mother, Mrs. J. L. Ritze, will leave Saturday for Minneapolis, where she is an instructor in the public schools.

STILL HOPE AN END TO STRIKE

COAL MINERS AND OPERATORS
PARLEY AGAIN.

MUST FORM A PLAN

Confers, Six On A Side, In Secret
Sessions Discuss Plan Of Markle.

New York, Dec. 30.—Still hopeful of reaching an agreement that would end the four-months strike of 158,000 anthracite coal miners, representatives of the miners and operators resumed negotiations today.

It was evident this morning that operators and union leaders were less antagonistic and suspicious of each other.

A new plan, which would embrace the best points of many proposals made to bring about a settlement of the strike will have to emerge from the deliberations of the operators and miners if efforts to bring about permanent peace in the industry are successful. This was the view expressed today by some of the conferees, especially the union leaders who frankly declared there was little chance the Markle peace plan, the latest submitted, would be accepted as it stands.

New York, Dec. 30.—The conferees, six on each side, went into session behind closed doors at the Union League club late yesterday. Shortly afterward, word came from the conference room that Mr. Markle had presented a peace plan and that the two sides had gone into separate conference to consider it. Hopes were expressed by observers that Mr. Markle had hit upon the right combination to end the long idleness in the hard coal fields, but those hopes faded when announcement was made that the miners were not satisfied with the latest proposal.

Markle's Plan.
The principal points in the Markle plan were:

The contract and working conditions which were operative up to the time of calling the strike shall be continued for one year.

Creation of a fact-finding commission, consisting of three operators, three miners and three impartial citizens, representing the public, the latter to be selected by the president of the United States.

Adoption of the principle of collective bargaining, "resting upon reason and not endurance."

Provision that the award of the anthracite coal strike commission and subsequent agreements be ratified and continued until September 1935, subject to renewal every 10 years thereafter.

To Investigate Industry.
Selection of a firm of reputable certified public accountants with authority to investigate and report promptly on every phase of the industry.

This committee of nine shall meet as a whole to reach an agreement as to wages and possible changes in the contract. The public representatives shall not be entitled to vote unless the operators and the miners fail to agree. Then a majority vote shall rule.

Should the committee be delayed in fixing rates through unforeseen circumstances until after September 1 in any year, there shall be no lockout or strike. Any decision rendered afterwards shall be retroactive as of September 1.

Col. Coolidge Is in Discouraged Mood Now

Father Of President Facing Prospect
Of Never Being Able To Walk
Again—Legs Useless.

Plymouth, Vt., Dec. 30.—Faced with the prospect of never being able to walk again, Col. John C. Coolidge, elderly father of the President, was in a discouraged mood today.

Colonel Coolidge, whose legs are useless as a result of faulty circulation and rheumatism, is able to sit up in a wheel chair.

"There is no immediate danger," said Dr. Arthur Cram, Colonel Coolidge's physician. "The colonel's heart action is better now than it has been for some time but in all probability he has taken his last step. The rheumatism attack probably has shortened his days."

DAVIS MAY BE IN DELEGATION

COOLIDGE MAY NAME PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATE.

OTHERS MENTIONED

Selection of Democrat On Commission
To Geneva Would Give Body Non-Political Make-Up.

Washington, Dec. 30.—John W. Davis, Democratic candidate for President last year, is being considered by President Coolidge for appointment to the American delegation to the League of Nations arms conference, it was learned today.

It is the present plan of the President to name a Democrat on the delegation to make it a non-political body. Other Democrats under consideration are said to be Col. E. M. House, personal advisor to the late President Wilson, Senator Robinson of Arkansas, Underwood of Alabama and Glass of Virginia.

Among those still mentioned as head of the delegation to Geneva are Charles E. Hughes, former Secretary of State, and Elihu Root.

Senator Borah of Idaho, chairman of the foreign relations committee, is the choice of the President, who only last night had Borah to the White House to dinner when the approaching arms meeting was fully discussed. Borah, however, may not care to accept a place, preferring to remain in the Senate.

The United States may be represented only by American diplomatic officials in Europe at the League's preparatory conference at Geneva on February 15. The agenda for the major meeting will be adopted then.

MANY NATIONS STORM SWEEP

EUROPE SUFFERING HEAVY DAM-AGE AND LIFE LOSS.

MANY REPORTED DEAD

Rivers Are Rising And Overflowing
Surrounding Country—Shipping
Is Menaced By High Winds.

London, Dec. 30.—Europe is suffering heavy damage and loss of life due to swollen rivers caused by unseasonable thaws and heavy rains.

In Rumania there were reports of many lives lost. Thorenburg is reported to have been under water for several days with the loss of a number of lives and great property damage.

Germany's rivers are rising rapidly and already Cologne has been partially flooded. Traffic on the Rhine has been suspended.

The Seine in France has been badly swollen and floods are reported from many towns and villages.

Heavy gales are doing extensive damage in England and shipping is fleeing for port.

Holland's lowlands are under water. High winds swept a motor bus into the water and six persons were drowned.

Throughout Belgium rivers and canals have swept over their banks. Houses and factories have been flooded and abandoned. Railroad traffic is interrupted and shipping is menaced.

The total loss of life cannot be estimated. The reports of heaviest loss of life came from Rumania where it is reported without confirmation that hundreds of lives have been lost. The damage will mount into many millions of dollars. Dangers from floods have not subsided. Floating ice chokes many rivers, causing them to dam and overflow.

K. C. Bank Is Robbed of $20,000 by Bandits

Five Robbers Hold Up Financial Institution in Heart of Downtown Business District About Noon.

Kansas City, Dec. 30.—Five bandits shortly before noon today held up and robbed the Argyle State Bank, in the heart of the downtown section, and took $20,000 in cash. The bandits escaped.

Three of the bandits entered the front door and another through the rear door. The flourished revolvers, herded eight employees and two customers into the vault. The robbery was completed in less than two minutes, every detail apparently being worked out in advance. The fifth bandit waited for them in a motor car.

No Comment on What Gen. Pershing Will Do

Official Washington Enveloped In Mysterious Veil Concerning Boundary Dispute in South America.

Washington, Dec. 30.—A decided veil of mystery fell over official Washington today in regard to the Tacna-Arica controversy in South America. No one in authority professed to know directly or indirectly whether General John J. Pershing, head of the American plebiscite commission that is attempting to settle the row between Chile and Peru, would come home next week, next month or within the next six weeks.

It is not generally known whether Pershing is really in bad health or whether he is suffering only from lack of proper dental attention.

The White House abhorred the idea that the United States intended to leave the plebiscite flatly and the members of the commission return to the United States.

Says Man Lived Here Before Glacial Period

New Haven, Conn., Dec. 30 (United Press).—Questions ranging from how long ago did man first live on the American continent to the latest methods of changing the sex of Salamanders, occupied the meeting of eight scientific bodies at Yale University yesterday.

Spirited debate over the matter of how long ago man lived in North America, broke out in the American Anthropological Association meeting. The American society of Zoologists head about the sex of Salamanders.

Dr. O. E. Goddard of the American museum of natural history told the anthropologists that he was convinced man lived in North America longer ago than generally believed—probably before the glacial period.

Dr. Truman Michelson of the National Museum took issue with Dr. Goddard and argued that the evidences advanced of early habitation of this continent were not convincing.

Dr. Robert R. Burns, Jr., of the University of Cincinnati read to the zoologists a paper in which he described numerous experiments.

ONE DAY LEFT TO PAY TAXES

LEGAL PENALTY OF 1 PER CENT GOES ON JANUARY 1.

LINE GROWING LONGER

And the Nearer the "Zero Hour" Approaches, the Longer Taxpayers Will Wait, Collectors Warn.

With the deadline for 1925 tax payment's drawing nearer, the line in the office of the city and township collectors began to lengthen today.

So far, the taxpayers have been able to transact their business with little loss of time, but with the opening of the office this morning the collectors have had a few "breathing spells," and the waits on the part of the payers are growing longer and longer.

Tomorrow is the last day either city or township taxes may be paid legally without a 1 per cent penalty being added. Township Collector Emmett Bartram and Assessor Geo. H. Meek, who is assisting in the collection, are inclined to be lenient, but there is not much they can do. The law says taxes shall be paid by January 1, and that thereafter a penalty of 1 per cent shall be added for each month they remain unpaid. The collectors will remain in the office all day Friday, however.

Almost $23,000 was received in township taxes yesterday. A hold-up man would not have made a very great haul, as less than $100 of this amount was in cash. The rest was in personal checks.

A unique Christmas and New Year greeting has been received by C. C. Corwin, local clothier, from Irving Miller of Junction City, Kan., an old friend of the days when Mr. Corwin was "on the road" as a traveling salesman.

"When I was 10 or 12," Mr. Miller begins, "milk was delivered to you in a can at 5 cents a quart; a pound of fresh country butter with a pausy on top cost about 15 cents; and hens made money laying 3 dozen eggs for a quarter; the butcher gave away liver and treated the kids to bologna; hired girls received $2.00 a week and did the washing; a bobbed haired woman was unknown, but our good old grandmothers sometimes hit the pipe beside the kitchen stove, men wore whiskers, and a bootjack was part of the household furniture, cussing was considered an art, beer was 5c with the lunch free, no tips were given waiters, and the hat check grafter was unknown, a kerosene hanging lamp and a stereoscope in the parlor were luxuries, no one was ever operated on for appendicitis, or bought glands, microbes were unheard of, the folks lived to a good old age, and walked miles to wish their friends a Merry Christmas.

"Today, you know, everybody rides in automobiles with their bright lights on, or play golf, shoot-craps, and turn on the loud speakers when their neighbors want to sleep, go to the movies nightly, then to a dance, drink good natured gin and moonshine straight, put off until tomorrow what should be done today, blame the high cost of living on the party in power, never go to bed the same day they get up—and think they are having a hell of a time.

"These are the days of suffragette profiteering, excess taxes and prohibition, and if you think life is worth living, I wish you

"A Happy New Year."

Mr. Miller also enclosed a clipping from the Kansas City Star telling of the sale of the Phares-Leet farm, near Maryville, for $255 an acre, from which Mr. Miller observes that "it seems like Nodaway County dirt is still valuable."

Mrs. C. C. James and Misses Minnie and Lillian James, returned home yesterday from Hermann, Mo., where they attended a family reunion at the home of Dr. James' brother, the Rev. Frank James, during the holidays. They were accompanied home by their daughter and sister, Mrs. J. B. Sickels and son, Jimmie, of Enid, Okla., for a visit.

Miss Lorene Hartley, an instructor in the Maryville schools, and Lloyd Hartley of Dearfield, Mont., have been spending the holidays with their father, George Hartley.

Miss Genevieve Todd will spend the week end with Miss Hazel Harrington of Pickering.

Mrs. Ida White and Miss Ardice Thompson of Wilcox were in Maryville this afternoon.

SYNOPSIS

CHAPTER I.—Fishing, in idle fashion, from a private dock, Dick Van Ness watches a ship, the Pelican, which he recognizes as the Beacon, his father's yacht before his death and financial reverses forced him to part with it. A man whom he hears a girl who accompanies him address as Mr. Blake, lands from the yacht. The girl drops her handbag in the stream, and Dick recovers it. Thanking him, she gives him her visiting card. She is Alice Cutler, niece of Stephen Cutler, successful business rival of the elder Van Ness.

CHAPTER II.—Dick overhears a conversation between Blake and Captain Brent of the Pelican which gives him the impression that the yacht is bound on a voyage of adventure to an island the name of which he does not hear.

CHAPTER III.—Acting on impulse, Dick, footloose and ready for any sort of adventure, remembers a hiding place in the main cabin of the yacht and determines to conceal himself and sail—a stowaway—with the party. Stephen Cutler, invalid, comes aboard, with his niece, and the ship sails.

CHAPTER IV.

Without premeditation Dick had placed himself in the position of being an eavesdropper to every bit of gossip and conversation that took place in the main cabin. In planning to get aboard the Pelican he had hardly given consideration to the thought that the open register would admit any and all sounds. He was a little startled when he found how distinctly even a whisper was carried to him. It was as if the cabin was a great sounding board, with its focal point of wave vibration at the register over his head.

The first night he learned from detached remarks things that both enlightened and bewildered him. Steve Cutler was going on a cruise much against his own will, through the urgent advice of Doctor Alster, the family physician, and of Mr. Blake, his private secretary, with Alice, his niece, as a loving but firm co-conspirator. The theory of Dick's that the cruise was to hunt for some hidden treasure received a severe jolt.

The yacht was bound for Valhalla, an island off the southern coast, that had been fitted up at great expense by the millionaire for a quiet winter resort. It was a small, isolated island without any communication with the mainland, and far enough from the lanes of travel to protect the occupants from visitors and curiosity seekers.

Cutler was a sick man, according to the testimony of his physician, and unless he took a rest of a few weeks the inevitable breakdown would follow. Angered both at the doctor who condemned him to a period of isolation, and at nature for playing him such a shabby trick, the old man fumed and fretted.

When he realized the actual situation Dick regretted the course he had taken. The romance of the voyage suddenly lost its flavor. There was a chance of adventure on a deserted island, with a party of searchers for buried treasures; but a small privately owned place, even if it were a mere dot on the ocean far from land, offered little of romance and less of adventure.

There would be servants on it, a small army of them, perhaps; formal gardens and cultivated fields; conventional summer houses, golf links, tennis courts, and all the artificial inventions of civilization to amuse visitors. There would be hardly a wild nook or cranny where he could hide and make himself comfortable.

Disgusted by the outlook, he felt inclined to abandon all secrecy and step forth from his place of concealment and confess. They could do nothing more than hold him as a stowaway and make him work for his passage. On the whole that would not be onerous. The presence of Alice Cutler would add a little zest of romance to the experience.

The second night out his cramped prison began to tell on his nerves. Too much inaction was worse than too much exercise. Scrubbing the deck under the angry eyes of Captain Brent seemed preferable to remaining in the narrow compartment.

The main cabin was deserted, and Dick struck a match to light a cigarette. It was his one consolation, and now that he was indifferent about his future he lost his usual caution. Only one electric light was burning in the cabin, and the stillness of the place got on his nerves.

new resolution. He would see the adventure through as planned, and not expose his hand until they landed. In the hope that he would overhear more conversation to enlighten him he kept his ears open every time anyone entered the cabin; but as it was a beautiful day most of the passengers remained on the deck, and nothing of consequence happened.

It was late in the afternoon when a commotion on deck aroused him. From the tramp of many feet he concluded that something unusual had happened; but he was a little disappointed when Alice Cutler passed through the cabin and said to her maid:

"Get my things ready, Marie. We'll land before dark."

Once again the desire to step out

"We'll be there by tomorrow night, won't we, Captain?" It was Mr. Blake speaking.

of his hiding place surged up in Dick, but he suppressed it. Now that relief from his intolerable position was in sight he didn't want to make a bad break. If the family landed before dark the yacht would be partly deserted, and the opportunity of stealing forth unobserved would come to him.

Half an hour later the screw of the yacht slowed its revolutions. Dick judged they were approaching land or passing through some crooked channel that required caution. The engine-room bell clanged repeatedly, and the yacht varied its speed accordingly.

Then came a slight jar and vibration. Sharp orders from Brent, another jar and then the propeller ceased its activity. They were at Valhalla, and the voyagers were landing. Dick listened impatiently to the bustling commotion outside until it subsided. He waited a full half hour after that to make sure they were ashore.

Then he quietly touched the spring that controlled the secret panel, and as the latter flew open he craned his head forward. The cabin was empty. With a smile of relief he stepped out.

One foot had scarcely touched the carpeted floor when a shriek that filled the cabin with echoes startled him. Around the way from him, with her back to the opposite wall, crossing herself with both hands, stood Marie, her eyes bulging with fear. She had seen him emerge from the dusty compartment, materializing out of a blank wall, as it were, and all the superstition of her nature was aroused. Shriek after shriek filled the cabin.

Dick's first impulse was to step back and hide again, but the girl's discovery of him made that course impracticable. He closed the panel with a touch of the spring, and sprang back into the gloom of the cabin. The door of a stateroom stood open, and through it he plunged without looking around.

At almost the same instant Captain Brent appeared in the cabin, and demanded of the maid, "What's the matter? What're you yelling for?"

Marie was unable for a few seconds to recover her wits. She kept on shrieking and crossing herself until the skipper shook her by the arm.

"Quit that!" he commanded. "Shut up, and tell me what's the matter."

"A ghost, captain," she stammered between chattering teeth. "It come right out of the wall—come—come—"

"Ghost, your grandmother!" growled Brent. "Now—"

Dick waited to hear no more. The stateroom he was in opened directly upon the deck. He slipped the catch noiselessly and stepped out. It was dark, and there was no one on that side of the yacht. In the gloom he saw the dark outlines of trees and rocks, with the land rising abruptly from the water to a sort of peak, topped off by a low, rambling structure, whose chimneys stood silhouetted against the sky like gaunt fingers.

Lights twinkled here and there in the distance, some stationary, others moving, and voices broke the stillness occasionally as one called to another. At his left the phosphorescence of the ocean gleamed fitfully in the half light. The yacht had landed at a dock that jutted far out into the water.

Dick glanced at the end, measured the distance to the island, and decided that his safest way would be to drop overboard and swim ashore. The commotion in the cabin, caused by Marie's screams, had extended to the dock, and running feet could be heard approaching.

Climbing over the rail he lowered himself with a rope until his feet touched the water. He shivered a little at the chill, and then dropped noiselessly in the cold brine and began swimming quietly toward the shore.

Marie's alarm, after all, helped him, for it drew the attention of the whole crew to the cabin, and by the time anyone thought of searching the outside of it Dick was pulling himself upon a rock completely sheltered from view. He sat there wringing his clothes when Marie, accompanied by Brent, crossed the gangplank and landed on the dock. She was still protesting that she had seen a ghost.

"He came right through the wall, Cap'n Brent," she moaned. "I nearly fainted when I saw him."

"You'd better not tell Mr. Cutler you saw a ghost on his yacht, if you don't want to be fired," replied Brent. "Now get up to the house or Miss Cutler will—"

"Captain," interrupted a voice out of the darkness, "what's all this noise about? Mr. Cutler sent me down to inquire."

Dick recognized the voice of Mr. Blake.

"Nothing but a hysterical woman," growled Brent. "She thought she saw something—a ghost—and she let out a shriek like a fog whistle. Hustle her up to her mistress. I got enough to do without looking after her."

"Oh, Mr. Blake," wailed Marie, "on my word and honor I saw something—a man—"

"Thought you said it was a ghost," jeered Brent.

"Well, sir, it was a man ghost—a tall young man, with dark hair and blue eyes, with—with a white face," Brent laughed hoarsely. "We got a lot of dark men in the crew, Marie—good-looking, too."

"But I never saw him before; he was not in the crew. He was different—a gentleman."

Blake and the captain exchanged glances, and the latter finally said:

"Well, if he's aboard, Marie, I'll find him, and when I do I'll bring him up for you to identify. If he's a gentleman he won't try to frighten you again; but between you and me and the fishes, I don't believe there was anybody. If there was it was one of the crew."

Brent turned and walked away. Marie shuddered, and murmured, "Oh, no, sir, he wasn't one of the crew. I know all of them."

"Go up to the house, Marie," Blake interrupted sharply. "Your mistress is waiting for you."

A. F. L. Guns Pointed Toward Soviet Russia

Letter Sent Out Warning Against Collection of Funds To Send Committee There.

Washington, Dec. 30.—The American

Federation of Labor today directed its guns on the soviet government of Russia, sending out a letter to "organized labor" warning against a movement to collect funds to send an American labor committee to Russia to investigate conditions there.

Denouncing it as a "nefarious scheme" President William Green asserted that the mission would be for the benefit of communists, not of American labor, and asked all trade union members to keep him advised of the activities of the project.

"While this agitation is in progress, representatives from the Russian government have banqueted with American bankers, and are now sowing the seed of their pernicious doctrine in the capital of our Nation," said Green.

THE ONLY DAILY PAPER IN NODAWAY COUNTY

Harmony Community News.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lewis and daughter, Frances were visiting friends in this neighborhood last week.

The Christmas program held at the church Christmas eve, was well attended, and a splendid entertainment was given.

The program was made up of numbers from the school programs that had been given in the different wards, and fitted in remarkably well. There was a handsome tree well decorated and well laden, and a Santa Claus who assisted in the distribution of the presents and the treat. A collection was taken by the pastor, giving those an opportunity to give who wished to carry on the spirit in this way.

The following young women had general charge of the entertainment: Miss Doris McKee, Miss Leatha Lawson and Mrs. Stella Porter.

Mrs. Alva Price missed two geese from her feeding pen Saturday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. R. V. McKee entertained at dinner Sunday the following: Mr. and Mrs. M. S. Casteel, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Casteel, Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Harbison and Naomi Singery and the family of W. L. Lewis. The dish to which the most attention was paid, was an elegantly cooked and served goose.

An elegant Christmas dinner was served at the fine farm home of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Flannery. Besides the host and hostess, there was present, Miss Gladys Flannery, Bard Flannery and the families of Edgar, and Eugene Flannery.

Miss Hazel Cox, who teaches music in the New Hampton school, came home Thursday evening and will enjoy a vacation till Jan. 4, at which time school will again convene.

Mrs. Rich and Kirby Portescue spent Monday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. A. King.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Fanning entertained the following at a Christmas dinner: Mr. and Mrs. Rex Vickers of Shenandoah, Iowa, and Mr. and Mrs. Dale Goforth and daughter Genevieve of Barnard.

(School Notes).

School was dismissed in all departments the week of Christmas. In most of the wards there were exercises with treats and gift exchanges. At Ward 5 (Common Sense) a box supper was held the evening of Dec. 18. Miss Leatha Lawson is teacher here and a neat sum was realized that will be used to purchase equipment. The High School were guests of Ward Four (Excelsior) and received their treat at that place.

Mrs. Ruth Cox, who has been quite ill, has recovered and will have charge of school at Casteel when it opens.

Our first debate in the District League, will be with Burlington Junction January 12. Arrangements as to place of meeting etc, have not yet been made.

Most of our teachers spent the vacation quietly at home or visiting friends.

No orchestra rehearsal the last week of school on account of the holiday activities.

Second Quarterly examinations Thursday and Friday of this week. The average of these two quarters will make the first semester's grade for permanent record.

The senior class will take advanced arithmetic the last half of the school term.

Some mighty fine work is being done by the class in domestic science, in their sewing work.

School reconvened Monday Dec. 28 with an almost perfect attendance and renewed interest.

Pierce, Florida and Mrs. Lance Jay of Des Moines, Iowa, who is also on her way to Ft. Pierce. Mrs. Chrisman will visit with her daughter for several weeks before going to her Florida home. Ft. Pierce is on the coast near Miami. Mrs. Jay is an aunt of Mrs. Ford.

(Church Notes.)

The Christmas program given at the church on the evening of Dec. 24th was well attended. Everyone seemed to catch the Christmas spirit and it prevailed throughout the entire program. The committee in charge as well as the teachers who assisted in the preparation of the program deserve many thanks for their part in this program. After the program a free-will offering was taken in honor of the one-hundredth anniversary of the Methodist Protestant church, which we are to celebrate soon.

Old Santa Clause then came rushing in with his jolly good spirit and presented the gifts to the anxious children (and others just as anxious). The Sunday school had provided a special gift for everybody and girl in the neighborhood, so no little heart had to go away feeling that Old Santa had forgotten them.

A large box of various articles has been collected and shipped to our Alvin Drew, Industrial school for boys and girls of the mountain district of this part of Kentucky, located at Pine Ridge, Ky. Our choirster, Prof. W. I. Lewis is providing special music for the morning services each Sunday. This is a great help to our hour of worship.

The people of the neighborhood presented the Pastor and family with a large box of canned fruit as a Christmas present. If you wish something fine done for the church or pastor and family, leave it to the women folk, and it will be done.

Washington—A lot of politics is mixed up in the controversy over the relative greatness of the late Col. Roosevelt and Woodrow Wilson.

OH DEAR, THE DIFFERENCE THERE IS IN CHILDREN.

It doesn't seem as if the validity of a dead man's claim to the honor of a national memorial ought to be regarded as depending on whether he was a Republican or Democrat, but apparently that's the way Congress looks at it.

At any rate, Congress' members are divided mainly along party lines on the Roosevelt-Wilson memorial position.

If it were a question of the memorial alone, two memorials would settle the matter.

But as was pointed out recently, both groups want the same site.

As Washington is planned, just one unoccupied spot remains, in Potomac Park, where an imposing monument will show to the very best advantage.

The Rooseveltians thought they had this spot pre-empted and had their plans all drawn, but now the Wilsonites are making a strong drive to upset the arrangement.

A surprising degree of bitterness is developing out of the wrangle.

The Republican majority at the capitol is in a position to decide in the Rooseveltians' favor and that's their inclination, but it isn't easy to go ahead with a pretentious memorial to their hero's greatness in the face of a formidable, though a minority, protest that he wasn't as great as they think he was. The situation probably would greatly entertain the colonel, if he could be here to see it, but it enraging his admirers.

St. Pat's Team Split Two Games Last Night

Preliminary Lost To Pickering, 6 to 17. While Feature Is Won From Ravenwood Quintet.

In the feature game of a double-header at the Maryville High School gymnasium last night, the St. Patrick's School basketball team won from Ravenwood, 12 to 11. In the preliminary the second St. Pat's team lost a 6 to 17 game to the Pickering quintet.

The second game was won just as the final gun sounded. Lyons, St. Pat's player looped a two-pointer, and before the ball could be put in play again the timer's gun announced the victory.

Joy, stellar Ravenwood player, was banished from the game on fouls in the third period by Lon Wilson, referee.

Shriver and Doffing were stars on the victorious quintet. Their defensive work shone out as the best of the game. Both worked well, offensively, too.

A large crowd witnessed the game.

Palmer Successful at Cuban Race Track

Maryville's Contribution to "Sport of Kings" Says He Likes It At Marino.

J. M. Palmer, formerly a well known negro resident of Maryville but for some time a follower of the sport of racing, has written a letter to the Democrat-Forum and Tribune telling of his success as a race horse owner in Marino, Cuba. His letter follows:

"Mr. James Todd,

"Sir:
"Hello, how are you? Just fine, I hope. This leaves me just fine. It is just a little hot here this a. m., but about 4 o'clock the sea breeze will begin to come in and the nights are certainly fine sleeping here.

"I have only started once since I have been here and made no mistake. At the rise of the gate, Mahaley took the track and won easy. I have two fast mares.

"It has been raining for a few days, but the sun's out and the shade of the palm trees and the bamboo bushes are appreciated. This is a great place for the winter; thousands of American tourists here. Well, luck to all.

"As ever, your friend,
"J. M. Palmer,
"Oriental Park,
"Marino, Cuba."

An enclosed clipping says of Palmer's successful entry:

"Mahaley made of the second race a runaway affair. Drawing away to a long lead soon after the start, she had an advantage of six lengths passing the furling pole. Holbert took hold of her rounding the far turn. When decorative challenged she had a bit to reserve, winning cleverly by a length. Waywasmance, third, was four lengths back."

Palmer also encloses a picture postcard showing the bone yard at Hanamoo, where thousands of human bones and skulls are seen in a huge pile.

LIFE TO CROY WAS ROMANCE

MARYVILLE AUTHOR LIVED IN O. HENRY'S BOARDING HOUSE.

WOODED GIRL BOARDER

Despite Bleak New York Surroundings They Wrote Way to Recognition Together.

New York, Dec. 30.—New York was romance to O. Henry. No boarding house was too poor, no alley to mean, but it could not produce for him those marks which set the hearts aflame.

It was the everyday events of life which bore the real romance for O. Henry. Every girl in a tenement to him was a potential Cinderella. The boy who sold him his morning paper, the young bank clerk who sat across the table at his boarding house, had somewhere, concealed the makings of Aladdin's adventures, or the wanderings of Haroun al Reschid.

At O. Henry's Boarding House. Possibly his spirit still lived in the old house at 55 Irving Place, his New York home, when Homer Croy, former Missouri boy, now well known as the author of "West of the Water Tower" and "R. F. D. No. 3," came there to live.

At any rate, Croy came to New York, a poor boy, with nothing but an ambition to write. He lived in the old boarding house which had been the scene of O. Henry's life here, and from this boarding house he went to fame, comfort, and best of all, to romance.

Croy was born and reared at Maryville, Mo.

Croy Tells How He Did It.

Here's the way Croy tells the story: "This is our romance.

"I was a green country gosling on a farm in Missouri, and I pitched hay to get enough money to buy a second hand typewriter and the railroad fare to New York.

"When I got here I moved into a boarding house at 55 Irving Place and had O. Henry's old bathroom, as this was the house where O. Henry had lived. I was put at a table with nine girls. I was the only man there—oh, boy! I loved New York.

"I looked 'em over, and picked the prize one. She was Miss Mae Sayell, a Southern girl just up from Bagdad, Fla., which was then just a poor, struggling state. She was a stenographer and wanted to write. So I sold myself to her, and pretty soon we were both using the same typewriter.

"When we were married we had motion pictures made of the wedding. We were the first couple in the world to do this.

Wife Also Writer.

"Well, Mrs. Croy began to write and has written four books—and we are still married. I guess that's some romance for a writer, these days—just to be married once.

"In the days when we were hungry she sure could make a can of beans go farther than anyone else in the world. She had a positive genius for it. She could grill up a bean and make me think it was a health diet.

"We now live at Forest Hills Garden, Long Island, in a house that she planned and built. She is also a genius at planning houses. I run the furnace, but otherwise we are happy.

"One or two points more. On our wedding anniversary we get the motion pictures out and run them off, and say! you ought to see how styles have changed, also my hair.

"We now have one child, a girl, three years old, named Carol. She came at Christmas time, and that is how she got her name. She seems to get her good looks from both sides of the house."

Expert Tire Repairing

Have your tires inspected by an expert before discarding them.

It takes considerable experience in repairing tires to know what tires should be repaired—as well as to know how to repair them.

We guarantee our repairs to last as long as the rest of the tire . . . and that the tire as a whole will give more in service than the cost of the repair.

We Repair Balloon Tires.
